

Atchoo!

Every time someone sneezes, the animals change their coats. If at first they were silky soft with black and white stripes, they later become wiry and spotted the next time you sneeze. You cannot remember what they looked like at first because as soon as you sneeze...

In the neighboring bay there lives a sleeping whale. Is he always asleep? Yes ... and he will never wake up until all the city's inhabitants fall into a deep sleep on his back at the same time. Don't worry, however, because this will never happen. No city is ever completely asleep!

The inhabitants of this big city once heard that they should talk and sing to the plants. And that's exactly what they did. But what happened afterwards? The lavish sprouting plants decided to move into the city's streets and buildings. Today, this place is called the Lush Green City.

The other big metropolis in this make-believe world is the City of Butterflies. When the city's people are sad or worried, they simply look upwards and marvel at the variety of colorful winged creatures protecting them.
